

The Law of Self-Organized Criticality (SOC) prevails across multiple dimensions.

The Surfside Champlain Tower structural collapse represents the law of self-organized criticality across the following dimensions:

1. Structural Mechanics, whereby increasing volumes of oxidation accruing on REBAR induces internal expansion within concrete structure, resulting in spalling, leading to the critical point, ahead of structural collapse.
2. Greed, whereby the truth of the accruing failure of the Structural Mechanics is masked, averting timely expenditures on effective remediation.
3. Incompetent Public Guardianship, whereby those employed authorities responsible for operating in service to public health and safety repeatedly fail over time to seek and examine the accruing evidence of risk to Structural Mechanics and to the inhabitants contained therein.

The accrued willful neglect and standard of care violations shall produce a greed-driven frenzy of litigation, enriching the lawyers, and providing little relief to the disaffected.

The law of self-organized criticality prevails, across multiple dimensions.
